

December 2025

Hi everyone

We hope everyone had a great Thanksgiving, and gearing up for Christmas. We have already had two snows; one six and a half inches and another ... It's snowing right now and there are supposed to be four more on top of the other. One thing I never needed to do in Haiti was scrape my windshield off in the morning. Wipe the dust off, yes.

Nothing has really changed there and more than likely won't until the world gets serious about helping them, and we don't expect that to happen anytime soon.

The day they were to celebrate their Independence Day, where their flag was first made - similar to our Betsy Ross flag story - was cancelled last month because of gangs fighting with the Haitian police. This is Ca- fou-pwa, where Alix lives.

With the negatives in mind, the ministry has touched many people; with food for the body and food for the soul. Haiti has a lot of proverbs about different aspects of life. One of those is, " No one hears the sound of a wooden bell or the cry of the poor". Even though the country is so close to the shores of Florida, it has always been overlooked by the world in general.

That is the very reason that they, and Terry and I are so thankful for you. For your sacrifice each time you give, so they may have something to eat, a church to go to or a school to learn in; some place to turn for help.

This goes all the way back to Jesus and what He said in Matthew 25. For I was hungry and you gave me something to eat. I needed clothes and you clothed me. I was sick and you looked after me.

You have provided the means to do those things.

As we have said in Christmases past, We hope you are blessed, knowing that you have touched so many lives this year,

Merry Christmas

Steve & Terry
